

GAYETY NEAR THE SEA.

A LARGE NUMBER OF VISITORS AT THE HYGIA HOTEL.

Good Effect of the Sea Breeze.—Arrival of the Charleston and Newark.—Looking for Italian War-Ships.

OLD POINT COMFORT, VA., August 4.—Special.—There is a grand rush and rally for the surf to-day, and the big breakers dash wild up to the breakwater.

The Hygia Hotel is in full force, as are many who do not lay claim to that title. One can but think of the pool at Bethesda as the lame, the halt and the feeble wade into the briny waters at Old Point for strength and healing. The man with sciatitis comes from his bath minus the excruciating nerve pain which an hour before made life not worth the struggle. The red nose hay-fever victim sports about awhile and breathes a normal breath on the water. The drooping baby is carried into the water pale and helpless. A few dips and the roses tint the pretty cheeks, and baby hands are clasped in the exuberance of return health. This is no pen picture, but absolute fact.

Another fact equally potent and proper to note, is the extreme healthfulness of Old Point at this present time. For six weeks there has not been a single case of serious illness of any form, and never does one find any sort of fever, malaria or contagious disease which maintains a hold in this pure air.

Just now Hygia young people are anticipating the arrival of the United States cruiser Newark, which is at Norfolk undergoing repairs, and will drop down soon.

The cruiser Charleston came to anchor in Hampton Roads last evening, and in spite of the rough sea, several of the officers were coming ashore in small boats. She will remain here some time.

A rumor to the effect that three Italian warships are en route to this place is well founded. During the naval rendezvous the Italian officers were great favorites socially.

Paymaster Fritchard, United States Navy, is spending the summer at Old Point.

Mr. R. Becerra, ex-minister to this country from the United States of Colombia, has a private yacht here for the use of his family and friends. He gave a delightful fishing party on Wednesday.

Miss Conchita Becerra is a typical Spanish beauty. She wears modest, clinging, high-necked gowns and jaunty Bolero jackets.

Mr. King, of Richmond, who is spending several weeks here, is a genial host and entertainer. Between his spins on his bicycle and his devotion to the ladies he is a busy man.

Captain William Fatten, of the Quartermaster General's office, arrived here on Monday.

Mr. W. A. Scoville, of Connecticut, a nephew of the late Henry Ward Beecher, is the guest of Post Chaplain Freeland.

Mrs. Commander Goodrich, United States Navy, and family are guests of Lieutenant and Mrs. Walker.

Miss Lee Duval, the acknowledged beauty of the karrion, is spending a few weeks on the coast of Labrador.

Miss Helen Truitt, of Mobile, is among the recent arrivals.

Mr. Arthur and family, of Texas, will remain through the summer. Their apartments are fitted up in a most tasteful and elegant manner for their long stay at the Hygia.

Among Richmond arrivals during the week are: E. P. Gentry, George Burrows, J. J. Montague, C. H. Montague, J. R. Macmurdoo, A. H. Meyer, D. Whedort, William Miller and wife, Mrs. Blenner, T. Kock, W. T. Taylor, Dr. J. P. Roy, W. M. Hill, S. R. E. Lotter, H. Hurston, S. Glover, C. H. Sims, W. B. Lightfoot, D. L. Brodman, M. Thalhimer, C. T. Allen, H. B. Hunter, A. M. Call, C. H. Hyland, J. D. Bowman, J. S. Gentry, C. B. Tennant and wife, J. S. Dill and wife, J. F. Bailey, Mrs. B. P. Pinner, Mrs. Pinner, J. Denati, P. H. Conrad, H. R. Sand, J. Schultz, Mrs. B. F. Gibson, E. L. Ruffin.

The lie was passed and blows were struck in the cafe of the St. James Hotel at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, says the New York Herald of yesterday.

Between Major John H. Hurst and Joseph H. Hurst, a lawyer, of No. 2 Wall street. Both are well-known men about town, Hurst being a member of the Reform Club, and Powell a member of the Southern Society. Powell lives at the Hoffman House, and Hurst at the St. James Hotel.

Major Powell walked into the St. James Hotel about 5 o'clock, and met Mr. Hurst in the corridor. The gentlemen were old friends, and after shaking hands adjourned to the cafe. They sat at a table, ordered drinks and conversed quietly for a short time. Then the bystanders heard Major Powell shout:

"Yes, you owe me the money. I have your note for $30 in my pocket. I have Hurst replied that he did not owe Powell a cent, and then Powell struck the table a heavy blow with his stick, and shouted:

"You lie. You know you lie."

As the lie was passed Hurst jumped to his feet and struck Powell a vicious blow over the head with his cane. He repeatedly hit him, until the bystanders interfered, and then he walked out of the cafe.

Powell followed him to the street and went Broadway to Thirty-first street. Hurst would stop every few minutes and threaten him with arrest if he did not leave, but Powell was smarting under the blows he had received, and refused to leave. He met Policemen Pinckley, and Hurst asked him to arrest Major Powell for disorderly conduct.

Pinckley refused to make the arrest, as he saw no evidence of disorderly conduct, but finally took him to the West Third-street station-house. Sergeant Sheehan listened to Hurst's charge of disorderly conduct, and then refused to hold the Major.

Major Powell then turned his head and exhibited to Sergeant Sheehan several lumps, which, he said, he received from Hurst, who hit him with his cane. Hurst did not attempt to deny the assault, and Sergeant Sheehan locked him up. Shortly after Ernest Dorell, of the St. James Hotel, called at the station-house and called Mr. Hurst.

Major Powell received medical attention, and left the station-house to go to his home at the Hoffman House. He is a railroad promoter, and is fifty years old. Hurst is thirty-five years old, and is a well-known lawyer, having an office at No. 2 Wall street.

It is not believed that Major Powell will appear in Jefferson Market Court against Mr. Hurst, as the two gentlemen have been friends for many years. Major Powell could not be found in his customary haunts last evening, and Mr. Hurst was also invisible.

The fracas was the chief topic of conversation in the "Tenderloin" district last evening, where both gentlemen were well known. An effort was made to suppress the story at the St. James Hotel, and the clerks denied all knowledge of it.

A startling revelation was made in the Jefferson Market Police Court, says the New York Herald of Thursday, when Mamie Brown, a colored woman, was charged with stabbing Lucy Dorsey, a colored girl employed at No. 126 west Thirty-first street, where both lived. She was held without bail to await the result of the wound woman's injuries, which are said to be serious.

The case was disposed of speedily, as every one, from the terrible condition of the prisoner's face, thought she was a victim of either rape or murder. The wound was to the neck, and the result of the blow was a livid pink color, mottled on the forehead and chin.

"How did you get that face, Mamie?" queried Justice Grady, who was conducting the proceedings, and it hurt.

"What's that?"

"Why," giggled the prisoner, "I'm one of Miss Elliott's patients. She is a-turking me white, and it hurts."

Questioned further the disfigured woman told this surprising story:

"All us colored girls in the Tenderloin know that Miss Elliott, of No. 142 west Fifty-third street, has a wonderful result which puts white skin over a black one. I heard of her from a girl who had been turned from the blackest kind of a nigger into a soft skinned brunette. Miss Elliott rubbed the oil on me last Saturday, but it didn't work either. She says I'm all right, though, and in a week I'll be a lil' white."

Justice Grady, impressed with the truth of the girl's story, indignantly denounced the woman who would deliberately skin a fellow creature, and called upon the Board of Health to investigate the case and take prompt action.
